Paris: 12 killed in offices of paper that 'mocked Mohammed'

January 7, 2015 -- Israel National News reports: "Gunfire erupted in central Paris at the offices of satirical news magazine Charlie Hebdo, police confirmed Wednesday. Officials confirmed 12 fatalities. Two of the dead are reportedly police and ten are journalists. Ten people are reported injured, five of them critically..."

At least two or three gunmen are believed to have been involved, according to Le Figaro. They were said to be firing Kalashnikov semi-automatic assault rifles. According to the paper, the gunmen are on the run after a shootout with policemen.

France Info radio has been speaking to eyewitnesses, several of whom are journalists from a press agency located in the same building as the Charlie Hebdo offices.

'We heard shouting in the street,' one of them, Benoit Bringer, told the station. 'We saw hooded men carrying Kalashnikovs enter the building. We called the police. After a few minutes we heard heavy firing, a lot of firing. We went upstairs onto the roof.'

'And then after about 10 minutes we saw two armed men come out into the street. Three policemen arrived on bikes but had to leave because the men were armed, obviously ... There was a lot more shouting in the street, a lot more gunshots. Source: Terror cells activated in France

January 10, 2015 -- CNN reports: "French law enforcement officers have been told to erase their social media presence and to carry their weapons at all times because terror sleeper cells have been activated over the last 24 hours in the country, a French police source who attended a briefing Saturday

Ahmedy Coulibaly, a suspect killed Friday during a deadly kosher market hostage siege, had made several phone calls about targeting police officers in France, according to the source.

French Premier declares 'war' on radical Islam as Paris girds for rally

January 10, 2015 -- The New York Times reports: "Prime Minister Manuel

Valls declared Saturday that France was at war with radical Islam after the harrowing sieges that led to the deaths of three gunmen and four hostages the day before. New details emerged about the bloody final confrontations, and security forces remained on high alert.

‘It is a war against terrorism, against jihadism, against radical Islam, against everything that is aimed at breaking fraternity, freedom, solidarity,’ Mr. Valls said during a speech in Évry, south of Paris.

The authorities started the day hunting for the companion of one of the killers, only to learn later that she appeared to have fled to Turkey and then probably to Syria days before the first assault in Paris on Wednesday. The police had suspected that the woman — Hayat Boumeddiene, 26, the girlfriend of Amedy Coulibaly, believed to be one of the gunmen — might have played a role in one or more of the attacks...” (The World Christian Encyclopedia documents the slaughter of 145 million Christians in the past 100 years. Muslim MP: ‘Lazy, wrong’ to say Paris attacks not Islam

January 12, 2015 -- Israel National News reports: “British Culture Secretary Sajid Javid, who is himself of Muslim heritage, responded to the bloody jihadist terror attacks in Paris last week that left a total of 17 dead, saying it is ‘lazy and wrong’ to say the attacks are unrelated to Islam.

‘There is no getting away from the fact that the people carrying out these acts - what we have seen just horrifically this week in Paris, what has happened in London and Madrid - these people call themselves Muslims,’ Javid said, reports the British The Telegraph.

‘The lazy answer would be to say that this has got nothing whatsoever to do with Islam or Muslims and that should be the end of that. That would be lazy and wrong,’ said Javid. ‘You can’t get away from the fact that these people are using Islam, taking a peaceful religion and using it as a tool to carry out their activities.’

Netanyahu at Paris memorial: ‘Radical Islam is an enemy to us all’

January 11, 2015 -- YnetNews.com reports: “‘Radical Islam is an enemy to us all,’ Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said Sunday night at a memorial service held in Paris for the four victims of an attack on a kosher supermarket in eastern Paris on Friday - Yoav Hattab, Yohan Cohen, Philippe Braham and Francois-Michel Saada.

‘Today we bow our heads in memory of the victims, as the representatives of a proud nation we stand tall facing evil,’ Netanyahu said, choosing to speak in Hebrew, as his address was simultaneously translated into French.

‘But the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and the more they spread abroad,’ he said, quoting from Exodus 1:12, ‘because justice and truth are with us.’

‘Here’s the truth: Radical Islam is an enemy to us all. This enemy has many names – Islamic State, Hamas, Boko Haram, al-Qaeda, al-Nusra, al-Shabaab, Hezbollah - but they’re all branches of the same poisonous tree,’ he added.

‘Even though the factions of radical Islam are fighting amongst themselves, they all want to impose a dark tyranny on the world, to take humanity 1,000 years back. They murder anyone who disagrees with them, especially their Muslim brothers, but their greatest hatred is for Western culture that reveres freedom,’ Netanyahu continued.

Netanyahu warned that ‘those who slaughtered the Jews in the synagogue in Jerusalem and those who slaughtered Jews and journalists in Paris belong to the same murderous terror organization.’...”

MI5: Muslims planning 'mass casualty' attacks on West

January 9, 2015 -- Breitbart.com reports: "The Head of MI5 has warned of a Paris style atrocity by Islamic terrorist groups taking place in Britain.

Speaking at the Royal United Services Institute, Andrew Parker, the Director General of the Security Services, said extremists were 'trying to direct terrorist attacks in the UK and elsewhere from Syria'.

And he said that MI5 had 'stopped three UK terrorist plots in recent months alone' where deaths would have certainly resulted but warned 'Although we and our partners try our utmost we know that we cannot hope to stop everything' and spoke of his concern at the 'growing gap' between the threat and the resources security services have to combat them.

Mentioning the horrific attacks in Paris, Mr. Parker said it was 'too early' to 'come to judgements about the precise details or origins of the attack' but warned that it was a 'terrible reminder' of what fundamentalists are capable of in our own towns and cities.

He said it would 'be surprising' if he didn't 'focus on the ongoing and increasing challenge from Syria'..."

Canadians told to prepare for lengthy battle against terrorism

January 12, 2015 -- The Globe and Mail reports: "Canadians need to gird for a long battle against terrorism while maintaining their unity and not singling out any religious groups for blame, Mayor John Tory and federal Finance Minister Joe Oliver told several hundred people demonstrating on a cold Sunday afternoon at Nathan Phillips Square in Toronto.

'We must look evil in the eye and call it by its name – jihadist terrorism,' Mr. Oliver said at one of several rallies in Canada held in a gesture of solidarity with France, after Islamic terrorists attacked the satirical newspaper Charlie Hebdo, the shooting of a policewoman and two hostage-takings left 20 people, including three gunmen, dead. Those attacks followed separate terrorist incidents in Ottawa and St-Jean-Sur-Richelieu, Que., in October in which three people, including one armed attacker, were killed.

Addressing terrorists directly, Mr. Oliver said they should know that they cannot divide Canadians. 'You will not succeed because we are united by our determination to protect our values, our freedoms and our citizens, be they Christian, Jews, Muslims or Hindus. We will defeat you. We will ultimately win because we are in solidarity and we are strong.

Islamic extremist attack in Nigeria named the 'deadliest massacre' in history

January 10, 2015 -- News.com.au reports: "Hundreds of bodies — too many to count — remain strewn in the bush in Nigeria from an Islamic extremist attack that Amnesty International suggested Friday is the 'deadliest massacre' in the history of Boko Haram.

Mike Omeri, the government spokesman on the insurgency, said fighting continued Friday for Baga, a town on the border with Chad where insurgents seized a key military base on January 3 and attacked again on Wednesday.

'Security forces have responded rapidly, and have deployed significant military assets and conducted air strikes against militant targets,' Omeri said in a statement.

District head Baba Abba Hassan said most victims are children, women and elderly people who could not run fast enough when insurgents drove into Baga, firing rocket-propelled grenades and assault rifles on town residents.

‘The human carnage perpetrated by Boko Haram terrorists in Baga was enormous,’ Muhammad Abba Gava, a spokesman for poorly armed civilians in a defence group that fights Boko Haram, told The Associated Press.

He said the civilian fighters gave up on trying to count all the bodies. ‘No one could attend to the corpses and even the seriously injured ones who may have died by now,’ Gava said.

Saudi religious leader OKs rape of children

January 3, 2015 -- WND.com reports: “Saudi Arabia’s Grand Mufti, Sheikh Abdulaziz Al al-Sheikh, the kingdom’s top religious authority in the ultra-conservative Wahhabi school of Sunni Islam, has ruled it’s acceptable for men to marry girls so young the West would deem it nothing short of pedophilia and rape.

Despite the Saudi justice ministry’s failed efforts to date to set 15 as a minimum age to marry a girl in the kingdom, Grand Mufti Abdulaziz declared there is nothing prohibiting Muslim men from marrying girls even younger.

As Grand Mufti, Abdulaziz is president of the Supreme Council of Ulema (Islamic scholars) and chairman of the Standing Committee for Scientific Research and Issuing Fatwas, which means he speaks authoritatively in Islamic teachings.

Grand Mufti Abdulzaiz’s more recent ruling on marrying young girls comes following a similar ruling in 2011 by Dr. Salih bin Fawzan, a prominent cleric and member of the Saudi’s highest religious council, who issued a fatwa, or religious edict, that there is no minimum age to marry girls, ‘even if they are in the cradle.’

Fawzan’s fatwa came from a similar edict in the Sharh Sahih al-Bukhari li Ibn Battal, which said the ulema, or Islamic scholars, agreed to permit fathers marry off their small daughters...”

ISIS’ guide to raising jihadi babies

January 2, 2015 -- Haaretz reports: “A guide for mothers on how to raise a jihadi baby has appeared online and is being attributed to Islamic State (also known as ISIS and ISIL), the Mail Online reports.

The guide, titled ‘Sister’s Role in Jihad,’ was unearthed by the Middle East Media Research Institute (MEMRI) on jihadi websites. Though the source of the guide is unknown, MEMRI believes it was issued by ISIS or its followers.

It recommends showing children jihadi websites, reading tales of jihad at bedtime, and encourages sports such as darts to improve their aim.

The ‘most important’ way women can contribute to the Islamic State is by indoctrinating children with the militant group’s values, the guide says.

‘Don’t wait until they are seven to start, for it may be too late by then!’ the guide urges. ‘Don’t underestimate the lasting effect of what those little ears and eyes take in during the first few years of life!’

Training for children should be ‘fun,’ the guide says, though it stressed that ‘fun does not mean music and dancing, as is portrayed by Western children’s TV.’ The latter, it comments, ‘mostly teaches shamelessness, anarchy, and random violence.’

Instead, it suggests that children practice target-shooting with toy guns to help direct their anger, though parents should ‘make it very clear who their target should be, and who their target should not be.’...” (Jesus predicted the future of these brutal murderers – “And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea” – Mark 9:42 and “Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell?” – Matthew 23:33.)

CONTENDING FOR THE FAITH

2014: The year of the Christian genocide

January 5, 2015 -- Breitbart.com reports: “The year 2014 saw more global persecution of Christians than any other year in recent history, and can only be compared to the first centuries when Christians were hunted down as criminals in the Roman Empire. The policy of the Emperor Diocletian, in fact, who reigned from 284-305 AD, was remarkably similar to that taken by the Islamic State and Boko Haram: ‘Convert or die.’

A look around the globe reveals an unprecedented pattern of persecution that has shifted from isolated incidents of hostility to a systematic campaign to exterminate Christians in places where they have lived peacefully for centuries.

From the kidnapped school girls and massacres in Nigeria and the displacement of thousands in the Central African Republic, to the believers arrested for having a Bible study in Central Asia, to Meriam Ibrahim being sentenced to death in Sudan, to the ISIS slaughters, to the couple burned alive for blasphemy and hundreds of girls kidnapped in Pakistan, Christians throughout the world saw a major escalation in persecution in 2014...”

Top 50 list of Christian persecutors

January 8, 2015 -- WND.com reports: “As the Western world stands in shock at the brutal murder of magazine employees and police officers by radical Muslims in Paris, the new World Watch List suggests Islamic violence throughout the world is spawning the most significant increase in the persecution of Christians on record and that likely means more intense repression of all kinds is not far behind.

On Wednesday, Open Doors USA, one of the leading organizations serving the persecuted Christian church released the 24th World Watch List, which lists the 50 nations most fiercely persecuting Christians.

‘The 2015 Watch List documents the most dramatic increase in violence and persecution of Christians in the modern era. So it’s really dramatic,’ said Open Doors President and CEO Dr. David Curry.

Curry unveiled the World Watch List in Washington, but he is very concerned that leaders in the U.S. and elsewhere in the Western world fail to grasp the significance of this dramatic rise in the targeting of Christians and what it means for believers and nonbelievers down the road.

‘I really feel like the world just doesn’t get it,’ Curry said. ‘They don’t understand that the persecution of Christians is a major story, is a major issue. It’s growing, and it’s a lead indicator of where oppression is coming for everyone else. Everywhere you look where there’s a major outbreak in the world today, first it was Christians. That’s what happened in Iraq. For 10 years, they pushed Christians out (even before the rise of the Islamic State).’

Nearly 200 Christian churches destroyed in surge of violence

January 5, 2015 -- WND.com reports: “There was a surge of anti-Christian violence by Muslims around the world that included the destruction of nearly 200 Christian churches in Nigeria during a short period around October, according to a new report from the GateStone Institute.

The organization’s Raymond Ibrahim, who has documented his discoveries in ‘Crucified Again: Exposing Islam’s New War in Christians,’ released the assessment of the recent surge on Friday.

‘In just two months, from August to October, nearly 200 Christian churches were destroyed in Nigeria by the Islamic organization Boko Haram and its Muslim allies, after their capture of towns and villages in the northeastern states of Borno and Adamawa,’ the report said. ‘In the words of Rev. Syria rebels ‘burned down churches and destroyed Christian graves’

NEWS FROM ISRAEL AND THE MIDDLE EAST

Israel omitted from atlases sold to Gulf states

January 2, 2015 -- Breitbart.com reports: “HarperCollins, one of the world’s largest publishing houses, has left Israel off the map in atlases sold to schools in the Middle East, leading to the Catholic Bishops Conference of England and Wales accusing the publisher of harming peace efforts.

The atlases are printed by Collins Bartholomew, a subsidiary of HarperCollins which specializes in maps and atlases. A spokesman for that company told Catholic weekly The Tablet that Israel was omitted because including the country would have been ‘unacceptable’ to its customers in the Gulf region, and that they had wanted to incorporate ‘local preferences’. The West Bank and Gaza are both shown.

It has been reported that customs officials in one Gulf nation have only been allowing atlases to reach schoolchildren provided that Israel is struck out by hand in every copy.

Bishop Declan Lang, chairman of the Bishops’ Conference Department of International Affairs, told The Tablet: ‘The publication of this atlas will confirm Israel’s belief that there exists a hostility towards their country from parts of the Arab world. It will not help to build up a spirit of trust leading to peaceful co-existence.’

‘Maps can be a very powerful tool in terms of de-legitimizing ‘the other’ and can lead to confusion rather than clarity. Wild cheers for proposed invasion of Israel

December 31, 2014 -- WND.com reports: “Turkish and Palestinian flags

‘There is no difference between the terrorism practiced by the group led by Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi and Israel’s terrorism,’ Erekat said, according to the Ma’an news agency, referencing the leader of ISIS.

He added that ‘ending settlement activities is a prerequisite for eliminating terrorism.’

THE NUCLEAR THREAT

U.S. and Russia in danger of returning to era of nuclear rivalry

January 5, 2015 -- The Guardian reports: "A widening rift between Moscow and Washington over cruise missiles and increasingly daring patrols by nuclear-capable Russian submarines threatens to end an era of arms control and bring back a dangerous rivalry between the world's two dominant nuclear arsenals.

Tensions have been taken to a new level by U.S. threats of retaliatory action for Russian development of a new cruise missile. Washington alleges it violates one of the key arms control treaties of the cold war, and has raised the prospect of redeploying its own cruise missiles in Europe after a 23-year absence.

On Boxing Day, in one of the more visible signs of the unease, the U.S. military launched the first of two experimental 'blimps' over Washington. The system, known as JLENS, is designed to detect incoming cruise missiles. The North American Aerospace Command (Norad) did not specify the nature of the threat, but the deployment comes nine months after the Norad commander, General Charles Jacoby, admitted the Pentagon faced 'some significant challenges' in countering cruise missiles, referring in particular to the threat of Russian attack submarines.

Those submarines, which have been making forays across the Atlantic, routinely carry nuclear-capable cruise missiles. In the light of aggressive rhetoric from Moscow and the expiry of treaty-based restrictions, there is uncertainty over whether those missiles are now carrying nuclear warheads..." (Nuclear war is part of the battle of the ages – see Revelation 9:18. North Korea 'close to miniaturizing nuclear warheads'

January 7, 2015 -- The National Post reports: "North Korea has set up posts along its border with South Korea to be able to more quickly invade its neighbor, while also expanding its artillery and mechanized forces, according to South Korea's Defense Ministry.

Kim Jong Un's regime is setting up 'infiltration facilities' along the demilitarized zone dividing the countries to be able to both accommodate and rapidly deploy special forces into South Korea if war breaks out, the ministry said in its latest white paper released today. It didn't say how many posts there are or whether they included tunnels and housed weapons.

North Korea has also probably developed ballistic missiles capable of threatening the continental U.S., according to the report, the first time South Korea has made the assertion in its white paper.

"These are newly spotted structures and could be part of a wider network of military bases and tunnels,' Park Chang Kwon, a senior research fellow at the state-run Korea Institute for Defense Analyses in Seoul, said by phone. South Korea is also 'formally saying that North Korea has very much addressed the issues of accuracy and reliability for its intercontinental ballistic missile...' (The Oriental nations along with Iran will be involved in World War III, Armageddon – Revelation 16:16.

Iran and the Islamic nations will join Russia – Ezekiel 38 & 39. Then China, North Korea, and Oriental nations will join Russia in the second invasion of Israel – Revelation 16:12 and for the third and final invasion all nations will come against Israel – Isaiah 14:2.)

Report: Assad building secret nuclear plant

January 10, 2015 -- Israel National News reports: "Intelligence suggests that Syrian President Bashar Al-Assad is building a secret underground plant with the aim of developing nuclear weapons, Germany's Spiegel news magazine said Friday, according to AFP.

Citing information made available by unidentified intelligence sources, Spiegel said the plant was in an inaccessible mountain region in the west of the war-ravaged country, two kilometers (1.2 miles) from the Lebanese border.

It is deep underground, near the town of Qusayr and has access to electricity and water supplies, the magazine said in a pre-released version of the story released ahead of Saturday's publication.

It said it had had access to 'exclusive documents', satellite photographs and intercepted conversations thanks to intelligence sources.

Western experts suspect, based on the documents, that a reactor or an enrichment plant could be the aim of the project, whose codename is 'Zamzam', Spiegel said.

The Syrian regime has transferred 8,000 fuel rods to the plant that had been planned for a facility at Al-Kibar, it added..."
