'One nation under Allah': the Islamization of American public schools

April 30, 2014 -- Breitbart.com reports: "Endless concessions and accommodations to Islamic demands only give way to more demands for even more Islam, as shown in the recent blockbuster revelations of an Islamic takeover of U.K. public schools. What is less well known is the same kinds of things are happening here in the United States.

So outrageous were the allegations that the usually subdued and sharia-compliant British authorities initiated an investigation into the charges that devout Muslims covertly sought to 'Islamize' the public schools in the U.K. The bombshell was dropped last month in a leaked letter, describing an operation purportedly named 'Trojan Horse.' According to Andrew Gilligan in The Telegraph, the jihad ringleader of the Trojan Horse plot constructed and implemented a 'detailed blueprint for the radical 'Islamization' of secular state schools.' The plot was so severe that a number of U.K. schools now face 'special measures,' which is the British term for (at worst) closings and (at best) a takeover of the school administration...

The same kinds of things are happening here in America, but when my colleagues and I warn about them, we are called conspiracy theorists.

Well, there is conspiracy theory and conspiracy fact. And we do see attempts to further the Islamization of the classroom here, in innumerable large and small ways, pushed by both Muslims and non-Muslims. A Muslim group is pushing for taxpayer-funded halal food in New York City public schools.

Just last year, a Colorado high school principal defended his decision to allow high school students at Rocky Mountain High School to recite the Pledge of Allegiance in Arabic — 'one nation under Allah.' Do students even begin to understand the implications of a nation under Allah and the sharia?..." (Muslim terrorists are preparing for a global takeover in any manner that works. U.S. Muslims demand Americans' private emails plans for a major Islamic construction project in their neighborhood, and a legal team defending them alleges that the goal is to intimidate the project opponents and send a message to others.

April 25, 2014 -- WND.com reports: "A Muslim organization is targeting seven Michigan residents who opposed

The case is being discussed by officials with the American Freedom Law Center, which is representing the people, whose names were withheld to protect their privacy.

A variety of subpoenas for information, including private emails and other documents, had been delivered by officials representing the Council on American-Islamic Relations.

Robert Muise, AFLC senior counsel, said, 'There is no doubt that CAIR – a Shariah-adherent Islamist group that notoriously uses the legal system to silence any opposition to its nefarious agenda – is abusing the discovery process to retaliate against and intimidate private citizens who dared to publicly express their opposition to the Islamic center.'

He continued, 'AFLC is quite familiar with CAIR's bullying tactics, which is why it is important that we defend these private citizens' constitutional rights...'"

Syrian extremists threaten to 'destroy' Canada

April 15, 2014 -- The National Post reports: "The most extreme armed faction in Syria has threatened to ‘destroy’ Canada, as Western governments are struggling to deal with radicalized citizens infatuated with Al-Qaeda ideology.

Speaking in flawless English, a member of the Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant said in an online video that after fighting in the Middle East, the group would turn on North America.

FBI: Rising number of American jihadis in Syria threaten U.S.

May 4, 2014 -- Haaretz reports: “The number of Americans traveling to Syria to fight in the civil war is increasing steadily and is of real concern to U.S. law enforcement and intelligence officials, FBI Director James B. Comey said on the weekend.

Comey did not provide an exact number, but said the trend was ‘getting worse.’ In an interview four months ago, he said that ‘dozens’ had already joined the fight, the Washington Post reported.

The FBI’s concern is that the Americans who have joined extremist groups allied with al-Qaeda in Syria will return to the United States to carry out terrorist attacks.

‘All of us with a memory of the ‘80s and ‘90s saw the line drawn from Afghanistan in the ‘80s and ‘90s to Sept. 11,’ Comey said. ‘We see Syria as that, but an order of magnitude worse in a couple of respects. Far more people going there. Far easier to travel to and back from. So, there’s going to be a diaspora out of Syria at some point and we are determined not to let lines be drawn from Syria today to a future 9/11.’

Comey said that Americans in Syria are actively recruiting other Americans to join the fight. The threat they pose, he added, is of concern not only to the U.S. but also is ‘a huge focus’ of European intelligence officials...”

Tony Blair: World must take a stand against radical Islam

April 23, 2014 -- Haaretz reports: “The world must take a stand against Islamic fundamentalism and support the principles of religious freedom and open economies, former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, the Quartet representative to the Middle East, was to say Wednesday in a speech at the Bloomberg London H.

In the speech, the text of which was released early, Blair also argues the fate of Israel ‘remains absolutely core to the region and the world’ and that U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry was right to invest so much effort into attempting to forge an Israeli-Palestinian peace.

‘There is a titanic struggle going on within the region between those who want the region to embrace the modern world – politically, socially and economically – and those who instead want to create a politics of religious difference and exclusivity,’ says Blair. ‘This is what, irrespective of the problems on the Israeli side, divides Palestinian politics and constrains their leadership.’

‘We have to take sides,’ says Blair. He is calling on the world to commit to the Middle East and engage in it, specifying that while this does not necessarily mean military involvement, ‘it does mean stirring ourselves.’

‘We have to elevate the issue of religious extremism to the top of the agenda,’ says Blair. ‘All over the world the challenge of defeating this ideology requires active and sustained engagement.’...” (Tony Blair’s warning must be heeded. Al Qaeda-linked jihadists accused of hanging victims on crosses

April 30, 2014 -- FoxNews.com reports: “Al Qaeda-backed jihadists are hanging the bodies of executed enemies on crosses crucifixion-style in a town in Northern Syria, according to a Syrian opposition group.

The executions reportedly took place Tuesday in Raqqa, where the extremist group Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant, or ISIS, an Al Qaeda-linked network, has taken over the city, according to Abu Ibrahim Alrquaoui, who identifies himself as a founder of a group called Raqqa is Being Slaughtered Silently.

Alrquaoui said those killed were rebels that had previously fought against the Syrian government of Bashir al-Assad. ‘It’s very dangerous,’ Alrquaoui, told FoxNews.com in an interview. ‘They threaten us directly and want to kill us.’

Alrquaoui said he witnessed the executions himself, and took photographs that have since been posted on the group’s Facebook page, and are now being circulated on the Internet.

The series of photographs show different men bound to crosses in what appears to be a public square area, though it could not be independently confirmed that the subjects were dead or, if they were, by what means the executions had been carried out. The pictures do not show any apparent signs of the men nailed to a cross, nor are there any obvious, visible signs of fatal wounds...”

Indian socialist party leader: rape victims 'should be hanged'

April 13, 2014 -- Breitbart.com reports: "Abu Azmi, the leader of India's Samajwadi (Socialist) party in the Midwestern state of Maharashtra, argued India's laws against rape were insufficient because 'nothing happens to women, only to men,' and that anyone engaging in sexual activity outside of marriage, 'with or without consent,' should 'be hanged' according to Islamic law.

Azmi delivered the remarks to Indian outlet Mid-Day, in response to comments by the national leader of the Socialist Party, Mulayam Singh Yadav, that he would, as prime minister, consider repealing the death penalty for rapists. Yadav also excused rape by suggesting that 'boys make mistakes' and the death penalty for something as minor could hurt the nation's social fabric.

Azmi, meanwhile, disagreed that the death penalty was too harsh for rape situations. 'Rape is punishable by hanging in Islam,' Azmi told the paper, according to the Times of India. He suggested that rape continues to be a problem in India, however, because 'nothing happens to women... even the woman is guilty' in cases of rape.

'If rape happens with or without consent, it should be punished as prescribed in Islam,' Azmi suggested. The sentence suggests that any sex outside of marriage, even with consent, is 'rape.' To solve the rape crisis in India, Azmi suggested, 'any woman if, whether married or unmarried, goes along with a man, with or without her consent, should be hanged. Both should be hanged.'..." (Shariah law demands: (1) Death to all daughters who indulge in premarital sex. (2) Death to all homosexuals. Oklahoma battles group over statue of Satan

May 4, 2014 -- Breitbart.com reports: "A battle will soon be held in Oklahoma over a statue of Satan that a group wants to erect near the monument of the Ten Commandments on the Statehouse lawn in Oklahoma City. A group called the Satanic Temple, backed by the ACLU, is insisting that its nearly-completed statue should stand near the monument, while a spokesman for the governor bluntly said that setting up the Satanic statue on the grounds will never happen.

The Middle East war on Christians

April 17, 2014 -- The Wall Street Journal reports: "This week, as Jews celebrate the Passover holiday, they are commemorating the Bible's Exodus story describing a series of plagues inflicted on ancient Egypt that freed the Israelites, allowing them to make their way to the Holy Land. But over the past century, another exodus, driven by a plague of persecution, has swept across the Middle East and is emptying the region of its Christian population. The persecution is especially virulent today.

The Middle East may be the birthplace of three monotheistic religions, but some Arab nations appear bent on making it the burial ground for one of them...

In the rubble of Syrian cities like Aleppo and Damascus, Christians who refused to convert to Islam have been kidnapped, shot and beheaded by Islamist opposition fighters. War on Christians: the politics of persecution

April 22, 2014 -- Breitbart.com reports: "In Nigeria, 234 Christian schoolgirls abducted; a Jesuit priest shot in the head outside his house in Homs, Syria; a young Christian woman dragged from her car in Egypt and beaten to death... These are some of the latest stories of Christians being hunted, tortured, or executed at the hands of Islamists.

Stories such as these are increasingly finding their way into the American media, and Americans are showing a growing concern for the persecuted church, but policymakers seem slow to respond. Not only is the United States government virtually silent on the issue of the worsening plight of Christians globally, but in three countries where Christians are currently most under siege – Syria, Egypt, and Nigeria – U.S. policy is actually exacerbating the situation...

Persecution of Christians is on an upward trajectory that runs parallel to the Islamist awakening and has accelerated under the so-called ‘Arab Spring.’ Yet it has not made it to the top-ten list of priorities for American policymakers, which is ironic, given that our nation was founded on the principle of religious freedom. Reports from North Africa and the Middle East attest to the fact that at least one side of this conflict sees it as a religious war...”

Former archbishop of Canterbury: We are a post-Christian nation

April 27, 2014 -- The Telegraph.co.uk reports: “Britain is now a ‘post-Christian’ country, the former archbishop of Canterbury has declared, as research suggests that the majority of Anglicans and Roman Catholics now feel afraid to express their beliefs.

In an interview with The Telegraph, Lord Williams of Oystermouth says Britain is no longer ‘a nation of believers’ and that a further decline in the sway of the Church is likely in the years ahead.

While the country is not populated exclusively by atheists, the former archbishop warns that the era of regular and widespread worship is over.

His stark assessment comes after David Cameron ignited a national debate over the place of religion in British public life. The Prime Minister urged Christians to be ‘more evangelical’ about their faith and claimed that Britain should be a more confidently Christian country.

His remarks, in the run-up to Easter, provoked a furious response from atheist and secular groups, and prompted a succession of senior politicians to give their views, culminating in Nick Clegg, the Liberal Democrat leader, calling for the disestablishment of the Church of England...”

According to a news release from the advocacy group the Center for Legal Aid and Settlement in the UK (CLAAS), Haroon had recently started work in Lahore as a road sweeper, where he worked alongside Muslim security guard Umer Farooq.

Farooq mocked Haroon’s Christian faith on a daily basis and tried to persuade him to convert to Islam. He told Haroon he was good looking, and should embrace Islam...

Rate of Christian girls abducted and attacked on the rise in Egypt

April 18, 2014 -- Fox News reports: “Young Christian women are facing a greater risk of being kidnapped by extremists, tortured, and even forced to convert to Islam since the Arab Spring ended in 2011.

This year already has seen a spike in the incidents, according to a report by the non-profit advocacy group International Christian Concern. It has been estimated by the ICC and other watchdog groups in the region that there have been 500 reported cases of young women being attacked by Muslim men since 2011, but unreported cases could send the figure much higher.

The girls are often assaulted, raped, kidnapped, forced to change their faith and sometimes killed, the ICC said. Making matters worse, nothing is being done by local authorities to prevent it in provinces across Egypt, according to officials from both the ICC and the Clarion Project, a U.S.-based non-profit think tank and advocacy group.

Atheist targets troops' role in prayer gathering

Major Christian conference 'pushing mysticism'

May 5, 2014 -- WND.com reports: "A major Christian church-leadership organization, which brought thousands of pastors and church workers together in Carrollton, Texas, this week, succeeded in raising eyebrows from some of the attendees – over so-called 'contemplative spirituality.'

The event, called 'Catalyst Dallas,' was sponsored by Atlanta-based Catalyst, and featured speakers Craig Groeschel of LifeChurch.tv, filmmaker Ryan Leak, corporate management expert Patrick Lencioni and author Jen Hatmaker, among many others.

During a workshop Tuesday afternoon, contemplative proponent Phileena Heurtz led the audience in a 'centering prayer,' which detractors argue opens the door to altered states of consciousness. A common theme throughout Catalyst Dallas was references to mystics Thomas Merton, Thomas Keating and Henri Nouwen.

Epidemics loom as antibiotics increasingly fail

May 2, 2014 -- Haaretz reports: "The world is on course for a future of uncontrollable epidemics, according to an explosive new report released this week by the World Health Organization.

"The world is headed for a post-antibiotic era, in which common infections and minor injuries which have been treatable for decades can once again kill," said Keiji Fukuda, the WHO's assistant director-general for health security.

Antibiotic resistance has the potential to affect anyone, of any age, in any country, the report said. It is now a major threat to public health and 'the implications will be devastating'.

North Korea ICBM engine tests stoke nuclear fears

May 4, 2014 -- SpaceDaily.com reports: "North Korea has been testing engines for an inter-continental ballistic missile, a U.S. think-tank said Friday, as Pyongyang announced a top military reshuffle that coincided with signs of a looming nuclear test.

The U.S.-Korea Institute at Johns Hopkins University said satellite images of the North's Sohae rocket launch site suggested one 'and maybe more' recent tests on the engine of what is probably the first stage of a road-mobile ICBM called the KN-08.

It was the latest in a series of similar tests -- dating back to mid-2013 -- on a missile with a targeted range of up to 11,000 kilometers (6,800 miles), the institute said on its closely followed website, 38 North.

'The next technically logical step... would be a flight test of the entire system,' it said.

The successful test of an ICBM capable of reaching the continental United States would take the nuclear threat posed by the North to an entirely new level.

Experts believe three nuclear tests have brought the North closer to mastering the miniaturization techniques required to place a nuclear warhead on a missile.

The entire village was punished for the death of a Nazi officer and the Nazi battalion behind the massacre consisted of collaborators including nationalists from western Ukraine.

Russia accuses NATO of 'provocative' actions

April 30, 2014 -- Voice of America News reports: "Russia has accused the United States and NATO of what it called 'provocative' statements as the crisis in Ukraine unfolds alongside a NATO military build-up in Eastern Europe.

Meanwhile, diplomatic efforts are continuing to seek the release of seven observers from the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe, who are being held by pro-Russian gunmen in eastern Ukraine.

Transport planes brought about 130 U.S. Army paratroopers to Estonia on Monday, part of a NATO show of force in Eastern Europe. Several NATO members have sent warplanes and ships to the region.

Russian Defense Minister Sergei Shoigu said Tuesday the military build-up was accompanied by 'provocative' statements about the need to 'contain' Russia..."

PM to push basic law that will define Israel as 'Jewish state'

May 1, 2014 -- The Jerusalem Post reports: "Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu announced on Thursday that he will push forward foundational legislation of Israel as the nation state of the Jewish people."

Speaking in Tel Aviv's Independence Hall, where David Ben-Gurion declared the country's independence some 66 years ago, Netanyahu said the Declaration of Independence placed the Jewish identity of the state as one of the foundations of the life of the country.

"Unfortunately," he said, "there are those who do not recognize this natural right. They seek to shake the historic, moral and legal justification of Israel as the national home of our people."

Netanyahu, whose comments come five days before Independence Day, said that one of his primary aims as prime minister is to fortify the status of Israel as "the national homeland of our people." A Knesset basic law on this matter, he said, would provide it with an important legal anchor.

"The State of Israel will always preserve full personal and civil equality for all citizens of the State of Israel, Jews and non-Jews alike, in a Jewish-democratic state," he said. "

Just days after U.S. Secretary of State warned that if a two-state solution was not achieved, Israel could become an apartheid state, Netanyahu said that in Israel personal and civil equality is ensured for all, something that distinguishes it in the region, and also beyond..." (God's Holy Word states 830 times that Jerusalem belongs to the Jews and it's where Israel's Messiah and Christianity's "King of Kings" will reign forever. Mashaal: Hamas remains committed to jihad against Israel

May 1, 2014 -- The Jerusalem Post reports: "Hamas is committed to holy war against Israel, its leader Khaled Mashaal affirmed on Wednesday, one week after it signed a reconciliation pact with Fatah."

"Our path is resistance and the rifle, and our choice is jihad," he said, in his first public comments since the deal with Fatah was announced.

Mashaal spoke by phone to hundreds of Palestinians who attended the funeral of Hamas terrorists Adel and Imad Awadallah.

Israel handed the bodies of the two brothers to the Palestinian Authority more than 16 years after IDF soldiers killed them outside Hebron.

Mashaal said that in wake of the failure of the peace talks with Israel, the Palestinians were in need of a unified political decision and a joint strategy that would lead to the "liberation of our lands and holy sites and the return of the Palestinian refugees to their homes..."

Palestinian Authority flags replace Israeli flags in Tel Aviv

April 21, 2014 -- Israel National News reports: "Israeli flags were replaced by Palestinian Authority (PA) flags on Friday morning at the Yafo (Jaffa) Port, located at the southern end of Tel Aviv."

Walla! reported the flags had been waving at the site for several hours, and that despite a number of requests to Tel Aviv police, officers or Municipality workers had not rushed to take them down.

The flags were put up after Israeli flags at the site were removed; the whereabouts of those flags and the perpetrators of the switch remain unknown.

Yafo is home to large numbers of Arab citizens of Israel; in 2011 over 1,000 local Arabs, mostly residents of the Israeli city, protested Israel's existence on 'Nakba (catastrophe) Day.'

The placement of the flags implies with it a claim of PA rule over the region, which is clearly not over the 1949 Armistice lines being used as a basis of peace talks in opposition to the original intent of the ceasefire lines..." (What brash and foolish games these perpetrators play. Hezbollah, Al Qaeda and Hamas flags in Jerusalem

May 2, 2014 -- Israel National News reports: "During an Arab wedding procession in Jerusalem's Old City on Thursday night, the Jewish state's 3,000-year-old capital bore witness to a multitude of terrorist organization flags."

Participants in the wedding, who received permission from the police to hold the procession in the Old City, waved the flags of terror groups including Hezbollah, Al Qaeda, and Hamas, alongside the flag of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

As they marched with the flags, the Arab revelers chanted slogans insulting Israel and Judaism, such as 'even with the rifle, the ('Palestinian') nation will live and will not die,' and 'we will write on the pistol: Al-Aqsa (Jerusalem) is holy to us...' (Never in a million years will this happen.
